

SOCIAL, ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL SITUATION OF THE COUNTRY

For twelve years, the Kirchner government used as a strategy of double standards and ambivalences. The first stages of this seemed to point to a new era of change, so were at least policies on human rights, the replacement of the Supreme Court, the nascent and anti-neoliberal Latinoamericanismo rhetoric accompanied by a heterodox economic policy. However, with regional economic growth even, do not consider the formation of a productive matrix supported over time to secure jobs, in addition to the tax burden associated with the lack of investment that has fallen on regional economies. Have caused a significant deterioration in these, the main sources of employment and the integration of our provinces. No change in the materialised tax matrix, it is not significantly reduced informal employment and financial concentration of capital and foreign ownership of the economy has been strengthened.

In 2008, populist strategies gained public attention. The polarisation of the friend / enemy has avoided the possibility of building consensus on priority issues for the country. The law on media, the nationalisation of administrators, the purchase of shares in YPF, the Act on Equal Marriage, the Universal Child Care Allowance have been recognised achievements of these years, but these "progressive" initiatives are not. Unable to produce real changes; They were aimed at defining the enemies to play a symbolic capital, becoming great flags "kirchnerista history" legitimising the actions of a pure populism that used the tools of the democratic and republican system to justify their own allied disciplinary measures and the forces of the 'opposition.

Some time later, he gave way to macrismo (change of alliance). Without showing great differences with media manipulation strategies, as well as lack of interest in dealing with complex issues such as drug trafficking, poverty and social fragmentation; Has governed the nation since 2015.

PRO government's arrival meant the victory of silent partners Kirchner, the government of "crack" and the consolidation of a voracious capitalism without the blinkers of a redistribution of apparent wealth. New alliances that fuel and contribute to global financial capitalism; The same one that concentrates 44% of the world's wealth to 1% of the citizens. Macri trend holding in his government.

The arrival in power of Buenos Aires and the conservative elite by popular vote is an injury that puts at the service of financial capital, the political gains of modernity: representative democracy, universality of rights, efficiency and Rule of law as a legitimating condition of power.

The Macrista government therefore intends to consolidate democracy hearing, on the basis of the defence of republican values; "Managed" by managers who promote atomised efficiency citizenship. On the basis of a strategy of systematically digging political discussions in the field of communication and machinery of the State in the service of the consolidation of a political centralism. A coast continues to hide the worst images of social vulnerability and legitimise violence.

On the other hand, the discourse and reductionist view of the PRO administration (change of alliance) of the "heavy legacy" in economic matters is not intended to assume the consequences of political decisions on the economy during the first months of management, A direct impact on quality of life and occupancy levels.

The notion of a national government on economic competitiveness represents the opening up of foreign markets, hurting entire branches of economic activity; Devaluation, low retention and suppression of price increases; The increase in the rate of services and massive wage cuts while the payment is eliminated under taxes on mining. In addition to promoting the mobilisation of capital and the gap between the haves and the have-nots, these government schemes aim to deepen the logic of individual competition and the destruction of collective processes associating obtaining a job with social integration benefits in the World of work. And these decisions fundamentally affect us as young people.

The lack of action lines, the comings and goings in decision-making, the systematic strategy of depoliticising discourse, encourage social production processes where wealth systematically develops the hand of the social production of risk. The same tools that humanity built to protect and secure lives have become the sources of the major threats to individual and collective existence.

According to official data, 5 out of 10 Argentines earn less than the value of a basic food basket. 2145 companies closed last year. The income gap between the 10% and the richest is 2500%. Last year's inflation was the highest since 2002, at 40.3%. The data show an increasing inequality.

The immigration policy of the closure of borders must be rejected absolutely, banishing prejudice and shattering any suspicion of xenophobia. We do not stereotype, let alone expel the best way to live in an increasingly globalised and cosmopolitan world. It is the opposite of the Argentine internationalism decisions of the socialist government regarding the migration regime seeking to establish.

And as if that were not enough, the national government recently announced its intention to lower the age of criminal responsibility. Generalisations how will you create, disseminate and legitimise discourses that hide a complex network of discrimination, exclusion, violence and inequality; The reinforcement of discourse and simplistic positions (up to magic) that assume that social conflicts are solved by increasing penalties or lowering the age of criminal responsibility. So we say "No to low". And we propose to discuss a juvenile justice system that respects constitutional guarantees and international human rights treaties. We intend an active state to think with and of youth, which recognises children and young people as subjects of rights, a state that promotes public policies encouraging participation, tending to social inclusion and Allowing the development of life projects for young people.
